OVERCRIMINALIZATION 2.0

DEVELOPING CONSENSUS SOLUTIONS

OCTOBER 21, 2010 • WASHINGTON, D.C

The Journal of Law, Economics & Policy, together with the Law & Economics Center at George Mason University, the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, and the Foundation for Criminal Justice, announces its annual symposium. Overcriminalization 2.0: Developing Consensus Solutions tackles one of the hottest and most dynamic areas of the law—overcriminalization.

There is widespread recognition, across the political and ideological spectrum, that the United States is overcriminalized, and that overcriminalization poses serious threats to our liberties, our values, and our prosperity. With recognition and examination of this problem, it is now time to move to the next level—developing solutions. This Symposium will capture the broad consensus on the overcriminalization problem and serve as the motivation for reform. The Symposium will be held on October 21, 2010, from 8:30am to 5:30pm at the Georgetown University Hotel and Conference Center located at 3800 Reservoir Road, NW, Washington, D.C. Breakfast and lunch will be served to all participants. Five (5) VA CLE credits are approved.
